SUMMARY

This report is Volume VI of a series that lists radiation doses of underground nuclear testing participants affiliated with the U.S. Department of Defense (DoD), including military, DoD-civilian, and DoD-contractor personnel. This book includes the calendar years 1987 through 1992. Participants are listed alphabetically for each year along with their total deep, shallow, and eye (1991 and 1992 only) dose for the year. Thermoluminescent dosimeters were used to determine doses.

The yearly average and maximum total deep dose for individuals are listed below:

PREFACE

The United States Government conducted 194 nuclear device tests from 1945 through 1958 during atmospheric test series conducted at sites in the United States and in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. The U.S. Army's Manhattan Engineer District (MED) implemented the testing program in 1945. In 1947 its functions were assumed by the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project (AFSWP) and the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) that administered the program from 1947 until testing was suspended by the United States on 1 November 1958.

Of the 194 nuclear device tests conducted, 161 were for weapons-related or weapons-effects purposes, and 33 were safety experiments. An additional 24 nuclear experiments were conducted from December 1954 to February 1956 in Nevada. These experiments were physics studies using small quantities of fissionable material and conventional explosives.

President Eisenhower had proposed that test ban negotiations begin on 31 October 1958, and had pledged that a one-year moratorium on United States testing commence after the negotiations began. The Conference on Discontinuance of Nuclear Weapons Tests began in Geneva on 31 October 1958, the U.S. moratorium began on 1 November, and the AEC detected the final Soviet nuclear test of their fall series on 3 November 1958. Negotiations continued until May 1960 without final agreement. No nuclear tests were conducted by either nation until 1 September 1961 when the Soviet Union resumed nuclear testing in the atmosphere. The United States began a series of underground nuclear tests in Nevada on 15 September 1961, and U.S. atmospheric tests were resumed on 25 April 1962 in the Pacific.

The United States conducted four atmospheric tests in Nevada during July 1962, and the last U.S. atmospheric nuclear test was conducted in the Pacific on 4 November 1962. The Limited Test Ban Treaty, that prohibited tests in the atmosphere, in outer space, and underwater, was signed in Moscow on 5 August 1963. From resumption of United States atmospheric testing on 25 April 1962 until the last atmospheric test on 4 November 1962, 40 weapon-related and weapons-effects tests were conducted as part of the Pacific and Nevada atmospheric test operations. The underground tests, resumed on 15 September 1961, continued on a year-round basis until the United States Congress imposed a nine-month testing moratorium effective 1 October 1992. On 3 July 1993, the President extended the moratorium 15 months on a "no first test basis." As of this writing, the United States has not resumed nuclear testing.

In 1977, 15 years after atmospheric testing stopped, the Center for Disease Control (CDC)¹ noted a possible leukemia cluster within the group of soldiers who were present at the Nevada Test Site (NTS) during the SMOKY event, one of the Nevada tests in the 1957 Plumbbob series. After the CDC report, the Veterans Administration (VA) received a number of claims for medical benefits filed by former military personnel who believed their health may have been affected by their participation in the nuclear weapons testing program.

In late 1977, the DoD began a study to provide data for both the CDC and VA on radiation exposures of DoD military and civilian participants in atmospheric nuclear testing. That study has progressed to the point where a number of reports describing DoD participation in atmospheric tests have been published by the Defense Nuclear Agency (DNA) as the Executive Agent for the DoD Nuclear Test Personnel Review (NTPR) program.

On 20 June 1979, the United States Senate Committee on Veterans Affairs began hearings entitled Veterans Claims for Disabilities from Nuclear Weapons Testing. In addition to requesting and receiving information on DoD personnel participation and radiation exposures during atmospheric testing, the Chairman of the Senate Committee expressed concern regarding exposures of DoD participants in DoD-sponsored and Department of Energy (DOE)² underground nuclear tests.

¹ The Center for Disease Control was part of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (now the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services). It was renamed the Centers for Disease Control on 1 October 1980.

² The U.S. Department of Energy succeeded the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) in October 1977. ERDA had succeeded the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission on 19 January 1975.

The Chairman requested and received information from the Director, DNA, in an exchange of letters through 15 October 1979 regarding research on underground testing radiation exposures. In early 1980, DNA initiated a program to acquire and consolidate underground testing exposure data in a set of published reports similar to the program then underway on atmospheric testing data. This book is the sixth in a series listing radiation exposures of DoD military, civilian, and contractor participants in underground nuclear tests.

SERIES OF REPORTS.

Most reports in this series discuss DoD-sponsored underground tests, in chronological order, after presenting introductory and general information. The reports include all underground tests identified as DoD-sponsored listed in ANNOUNCED UNITED STATES NUCLEAR TESTS (DOE/NV-209) published by the DOE Nevada Operations Office, Office of External Affairs³, except one category. The category of tests not discussed in this series of reports are nuclear test detection experiments conducted under the VELA-UNIFORM program. Generally, reentries after these tests were not performed, so significant participant exposure to radiation did not occur.

One report discusses general participation of DoD personnel in DOE underground nuclear tests, with specific information on those tests that released radioactive effluent to the atmosphere, and where exposures of DoD personnel were involved.

This series of volumes constitutes a census of DoD personnel and their radiation exposure data, reported as dose data in this volume. This sixth volume of the Census Report lists radiation doses of DoD-affiliated personnel (military, civilian, and contractor) who participated in U.S. underground nuclear tests from 1987 through 1992. Distribution of all volumes of the Census Report is necessarily limited by provisions of the Privacy Act.

³ In 1987 the Department of Energy's Office of Public Affairs was changed to the Office of External Affairs.

METHODS AND SOURCES USED TO PREPARE THE VOLUMES.

Information for these reports was obtained from several locations. Classified documents were researched at Headquarters, DNA, Washington, D.C. Additional documents were researched at Field Command/DNA, the Air Force Weapons Laboratory, Phillips Laboratories (a 13 December 1990 consolidation of the Air Force's Space Technology Center, Weapons Laboratory, Geophysics Laboratory, and Astronautics Laboratory), and Sandia National Laboratories, Albuquerque, New Mexico. Most of the radiation measurement data were obtained at DOE, Nevada Operations Office (DOE/NV), and its support contractor, Reynolds Electrical & Engineering Company, Incorporated (REECo), both in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Unclassified records were used to document underground testing activities when possible, but, when necessary, unclassified information was extracted from classified documents. Both classified and unclassified documents were cited in the References Section at the end of each report. Locations of the referenced documents also are shown. Copies of most of the unclassified references have been entered into the document collection of the Coordination and Information Center (CIC), a DOE-contractor facility operated by REECo and located in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Radiation measurement and exposure data, event data, and offsite reports generally are maintained in hard copy or on microfilm at the REECo facilities adjacent to the CIC or as original documents at the Federal Archives and Records Center, Laguna Niguel, California. The Master File of all available personnel exposure data for nuclear testing programs on the continent and in the Pacific from 1945 to the present is maintained by REECo for DoD and DOE. Data for this volume of the Census Report were obtained from the DoD/DOE Master File.

ORGANIZATION OF THIS VOLUME.

A summary of this volume appears before this Preface. It includes the period covered by this volume, average individual total deep dose data for each year, and maximum individual total deep dose data for each year.

Section 1, Introduction, following this Preface, discusses deep, shallow, eye, and internal doses (if any) and methods used to determine these doses. Information also is given on thermoluminescent dosimeter (TLD) and records systems.

Section 2, Personnel Dose Information, lists participants alphabetically. Total doses (by category) per individual per year are shown; where possible, an organization and identification number for each individual is listed.

Following the dose information are the references and the appendices that list organization codes, abbreviations and acronyms, and terms pertinent to this report.

SECTION 1

INTRODUCTION

The first United States nuclear detonation designed to be contained underground was the RAINIER tunnel event conducted by the University of California Radiation Laboratory (UCRL) for the AEC in Nevada 19 September 1957. This was a weapons-related experiment with a relatively low yield of 1.7 kilotons (kt). The second tunnel event with a significant nuclear yield was a safety experiment on 22 February 1958, also conducted in Nevada by UCRL for the AEC. This experiment, the VENUS event, resulted in a yield of less than one ton. These two tunnel tests and five additional underground safety experiments with zero or only slight yields were the beginning of the United States underground nuclear testing program. The first DoD-sponsored underground nuclear weapons-effects test was the 5.7 kt HARD HAT event, conducted by the Defense Atomic Support Agency (DASA) on 15 February 1962 at NTS.

1.1 HISTORICAL BACKGROUND.

While technical conferences between the United States and the Soviet Union on banning nuclear detonation tests continued, and concern regarding further increases in worldwide fallout mounted, a number of nuclear tests were conducted underground during 1958 at NTS. Prior to the United States testing moratorium of 1 November 1958, six safety experiments in shafts, five safety experiments in tunnels, and four weapons-related tests in tunnels were conducted by user laboratories. Radioactive products from several of these tests were not completely contained underground. Containment of nuclear detonations was a new engineering challenge. Understanding and solving the majority of containment problems would require years of underground testing experience.

When the United States resumed testing on 15 September 1961, the first 32 tests were underground, including a cratering experiment with the device emplaced 110 feet below the surface. The Dominic test series in the Pacific and the Sunbeam test series in Nevada during 1962 were the last atmospheric nuclear detonation tests by the United States.

The commitment by the United States to reduce levels of worldwide fallout by refraining from conducting nuclear tests in the atmosphere, in outer space, and underwater was finalized when the Limited Test Ban Treaty with the Soviet Union was signed on 5 August 1963. With the signing of the Threshold Ban Treaty, 1974, and the Peaceful Nuclear Explosions Treaty, 1976, the United States and the Soviet Union agreed to limit the maximum yield of underground tests to 150 kt. While these treaties were not ratified by the United States until September 1990, both governments adhered to their maximum yield limitations. (The delay in ratifying the treaties was due to perceived verification problems that were ultimately resolved by new U.S./Soviet verification proposals agreed to on 1 June 1990.) In recent years, yields were reported as being within a particular range; less than 20 kt, 20 to 150 kt, 20 to 200 kt, or less than 150 kt.

1.2 UNDERGROUND TESTING OBJECTIVES.

The majority of United States underground tests have been for weapons-related purposes. New designs were tested to improve efficiency and deliverability characteristics of nuclear explosive devices before they entered the military stockpile as components of nuclear weapons.

In addition to weapons-related tests, safety experiments with nuclear devices also were conducted by user laboratories. These experiments were used to evaluate potential nuclear yield or safety systems by detonating conventional high explosives in a manner which might occur in a nuclear accident during transportation, handling, or storage of weapons.

Nuclear weapons-effects tests (NWET) sponsored by the DoD were conducted to determine vulnerability or survivability of military systems or components when exposed to one or more effects of a nuclear detonation. The major emphasis of NWET was on collecting radiation-effects data for strategic systems such as Pershing, Polaris, Minute Man, and others. The nuclear devices for these tests were provided by DOE weapons-development laboratories and were designed to be similar to the actual nuclear components used in nuclear weapons. Actual weapons configurations only were used in a few tests. Military systems, structures, materials, electronic experiments, and other related experiments were provided by DoD and DOE agencies. Many of these tests were very complex and involved greater numbers of participants than other categories of tests previously mentioned. Personnel from DNA, other government organizations, user laboratories and contractors, and DoD contractor-agencies were involved.

Some tests were designed to study the response of hardened structures or geologic formations to shock waves generated by nuclear detonations. Many tests were designed to study the response of military components to effects of radiation produced by nuclear weapons. Such tests required a direct line-of-sight between the nuclear device and the experiments. Some of the radiation-effects tests required the simulation of high altitude (up to exoatmospheric) conditions. These tests involved installation of experiments inside large steel line-of-sight (LOS) pipes, hundreds of feet in length, with maximum diameters of several feet. Large vacuum pumps were utilized to reduce pressure inside the pipes to the desired simulation level. Other radiation-effects tests used scatterers to direct the radiation to experiments outside the pipe.

1.3 TEST PARTICIPANTS IN THIS VOLUME.

DoD-affiliated personnel listed in this volume participated during the testing period 1987 through 1992. There were 65 underground tests during this period, of which 9 were sponsored by DoD and the remainder conducted by DOE. Many participants in DoD tests were not DoD-affiliated personnel and are not listed in this volume. On the other hand, some DoD-affiliated personnel participated in DOE tests, and their doses from those tests are included in this volume.

Activities of DoD-affiliated participants at DoD-sponsored tests covered a broad spectrum, from directing the tests, through measurements and experimenting, to support functions. DoD-affiliated participants in DOE tests were usually limited to support aircraft personnel, military personnel in the DOE Test Controller's organization, and DoD military and contractor personnel conducting experiments similar to those conducted during DoD-sponsored tests.

1.4 DETERMINATION OF EXPOSURE AND DOSE DATA.

The primary radiation exposures monitored and recorded for test participants are from x and gamma radiation. These radiations are the same type of electromagnetic radiations as radio and television signals or light except that gamma and x radiations are of much higher energy. Gamma radiation originates in the nuclei of atoms when certain nuclear reactions take place. Emission of x rays result when high-speed negatively-charged electrons release energy as they are slowed down near the positively charged nuclei of atoms, or when electrons orbiting the nucleus release energy as they drop into lower energy orbits. Both gamma and x radiation of the same energy are identical except for their origins.

Both gamma and x radiation affect film in film badge dosimeters like light affects unexposed film. Films are wrapped in light-tight packets the same size as dental x-ray packets. Packets have areas covered by one or more metal filters to make the film emulsions respond more evenly to different energy gamma or x radiations. When the film from a film packet exposed to gamma or x radiation is developed, the film exhibits a darkening or increased optical density which can be related to the degree of gamma and x-radiation exposure. Other factors, however, can result in darkening of the film emulsion. Light leaks in the packet, pressure damage, excessive heat, high humidity, and aging are some of these factors. Almost all damage and environmental effects on film packets cause increased darkening of the developed film emulsion and subsequent overestimates of radiation dose received by the wearer.

Film badges may detect radiation from some luminous dial watches, clocks, and compasses; from uranium-colored pottery and dishes; from television sets if the badges are left near or on these objects for a few days; and from natural radioactivity in earth materials and of cosmic origin.

The film badge dosimeter used from 1962 through 1965 at NTS was a DuPont packet with a lead filter wrapped around the packet covering an area one half by one inch on each side. The packet contained two films, a low range and a high range component, and was used to determine gamma- and x-radiation exposures only. The film packet was worn in a small plastic bag attached to the security badge.

A combination personnel dosimeter and security credential holder was put in use at NTS in 1966. This DuPont two-component packet, that had the capability to determine beta-, gamma-, and x-radiation exposures, was used in this dosimeter until March 1971, when DuPont no longer manufactured the packet. Subsequently, a Kodak Type III packet was used. This film packet contained two component films, one low range and one high range. Gamma exposure ranges of the two components were 30 mR to 10 R and 10 R to 800 R, respectively.

Other dosimeter types have been used to monitor neutron exposure and exposure to extremities from ionizing radiation. Few of these exposures are recorded for DoD-affiliated participants and such exposures are not included in the Census Report. In 1979, the Albedo neutron dosimeter, a TLD component system, was adopted for use at the NTS because of its increased sensitivity to a wide neutron energy range. This TLD, not part of the standard dosimeter packet, was only issued to those personnel who had a potential for exposure to a neutron source. This system was used from 1979 through 1986.

With the advent of the DOE requirements to restrict personnel exposures to as low as reasonably achievable (ALARA) and with emphasis on accurate dosimetry at low doses, REECo Environmental Sciences Department personnel began evaluating TLD systems and neutron dosimeters in the early 1980s. The film badge and Albedo neutron TLD, used through 1986, would not meet the new DOE requirements for greater sensitivity in measuring low exposures and for the level of reproducibility in evaluating doses.

After evaluating several dosimetry systems, the Panasonic TLD and the track etch neutron dosimeter were put in use in 1987 replacing the Kodak Type III film and the Albedo neutron dosimeters respectively. Figure 1-1 shows the Panasonic Model UD-802AS2 TLD dosimeter as it is inserted into the security credential holder. Figure 1-2 shows the four phosphor-element components that measure shallow dose equivalent, deep dose equivalent, and the low dose range. The high sensitivity of the last two components extend the dose range down to 0.1 mR. Figure 1-3 shows the track etch neutron dosimeter and its size relative to the security credential holder, while Figure 1-4 shows the components. The security credential holder was redesigned to accommodate both dosimeters.

The DOE Order 5480.11, "Radiation Protection for Occupational Workers," (revised 29 June 1990) established the radiation protection standards and program requirements for DOE, its contractor personnel, and other occupational personnel to protect these workers from ionizing radiation. It defines in detail the policies and procedures to operate DOE facilities and conduct activities to keep personnel exposures well below the limits set by this Order to meet the ALARA goals. The DOE Nevada Operations Office published the NV/YMP Site-Specific Radiological Control Manual, Excellence in Radiological Control, in December 1992 to further expand on the details of radiation protection standards and program requirements as they relate to NTS. In December 1993, DOE issued 10 CFR Part 835, "Occupational Radiation Protection; Final Rule." This final rule codifies existing DOE radiation protection directives and provides nuclear safety requirements which, if violated, will provide a basis for civil and criminal penalties under the Price-Anderson Amendments Act of 1988.

This dosimetry system, rather than defining limits based on the annual occupational whole-body penetrating radiation exposure guide, was designed under the specifics of the effective dose equivalent system. Ionizing radiation exposures are expressed as deep dose (mrem), shallow dose (mrem) and eye dose (mrem) equivalents.

There are no DoD-participant records in this report that reflect any doses from internal deposition of radionuclides as determined by analysis of body fluids, direct measurement of radiation from particular body organs, or direct measurement of the whole body with special radiation detection equipment. Previously, only one whole-body dose from internal deposition of tritium was recorded for 1964; only one tritium dose was recorded for 1968; and only two thyroid doses from radioiodines were recorded in 1968.

1.5 EXPOSURE RECORDS.

This information represents the latest and most accurate dose data available; however, it is continually being updated and some changes may be expected in the future. To obtain the latest information available before revised copies of this report are published, please consult the Master File of exposure records. The Master File of exposure records for all nuclear weapons and nuclear device testing from 1945 to the present on the continent and in the Pacific is maintained for DoD and DOE at REECo's Las Vegas facilities. Also maintained at that location are archival source documents that support data in the Master File. Any nuclear test participant may request and obtain a copy of his or her radiation exposure history from the following address:

United States Department of Energy
Attn: Dosimetry Research Project
Reynolds Electrical & Engineering Co., Inc.
Post Office Box 98521 M/S 543
Las Vegas, NV 89195-0100

For comparison purposes, the limiting value of the total effective dose equivalent from both internal and external sources received in any year by an occupational worker is 5 rem. The limiting value of the sum of the deep dose equivalent for external exposures and the committed dose equivalent to any organ or tissue other than the lens of the eye in any year by an occupational worker is 50 rem. The annual limiting value of a shallow dose equivalent to the skin or any extremity is 50 rem, and the annual limiting eye dose equivalent is 15 rem.

Identification numbers listed in these Census Report volumes from 1962 through 1970 are a combination of: (1) military serial numbers, (2) social security numbers, and (3) NTS numbers. Starting in 1971 and continuing to the present, only social security numbers are listed. For individuals not having a social security number, an identification number (i.e., A00-00-XXX) was assigned. Serial numbers would have been preferred in all cases, but were not available in most NTS records. The "NTS" number was an identification number assigned by NTS security force badge office personnel when a permanent security badge was issued. It was later used by REECo as an employee number.

The organization codes listed have been standard at NTS since 1961. An organization code followed by an asterisk (*) denotes that individual was a visitor at the NTS representing that organization within a given year. However, the organization names have changed in some instances. Organization codes and accompanying names may be found in Appendix A to each Census Report volume. The current organization name is listed, and any previous organization names for the particular code are listed in parenthesis. Listed in Appendix B are abbreviations and acronyms used in the text. Appendix C is a glossary of terms used in the text.

VA	Veterans Administration

APPENDIX C

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

Beta Particle

A negatively charged particle of very small mass emitted from the nucleus of a radionuclide, particularly from fission product radionuclides formed during a nuclear detonation. Except for origin, the beta particle is identical to a high-speed electron. This may also be a positively charged particle of equal mass called a positron.

Committed Dose Equivalent (H_T , 50)

The dose equivalent calculated to be received by a tissue or organ over a 50-year period after the intake of a radionuclide into the body. Committed dose equivalent is expressed in units of rem (or sievert).

Deep Dose Equivalent (H_d)

The dose equivalent derived from external radiation at a depth of 1.0 cm in tissue.

Dose

A quantity (measured or accumulated) of ionizing radiation energy absorbed into the medium it passes through. In a person, dose is measured in rem or rad.

Dose Equivalent (H)

The product of absorbed dose in tissue, a quality factor, and other modifying factors. Dose equivalent is expressed in units of rem (or sievert).

Dose Rate

The amount of ionizing radiation energy that an individual or material could absorb per unit of time. Dose rates are usually expressed as rad or rem per hour. Subdivisions of a rad or rem also are used, e.g., mrem/h means millirem per hour. (A millirem equals one thousandth of a rem.)

Effective Dose Equivalent (H_E)	The summation of the products of the dose equivalent received by specific tissues of the body and the appropriate weighing factor. It includes the dose from radiation sources internal and/or external to the body. The effective dose equivalent is expressed in units of rem (or sievert).
Exoatmospheric	This refers to the area outside the gaseous mass which envelopes the earth.
Exposure	A measure expressed in roentgens (R), of the ionization produced by gamma or x rays in air. This may also be represented by subdivisions of R; e.g., $1/1000 \text{ R} = 1 \text{ milliroentgen (mR).}$
Eye dose Equivalent	The dose equivalent, that applies to the external exposure of the lens of the eye, at a tissue depth of 0.3 cm.
Gamma Radiation	Radiation of high energy originating in atomic nuclei and frequently accompanying the emission of alpha and beta particles in radioactive decay. Gamma rays can travel considerable distances through air, although the intensity decreases rapidly at increasing distances from the source.
Ionizing Radiation	This includes any particulate or electromagnetic radiation capable of producing ions, directly or indirectly, in its passage through air or matter. Alpha and beta particles produce ion pairs directly, while the electrons of initial ion pairs produced by gamma and x rays in turn produce secondary ionization in their paths. Neutrons may displace a positively charged part of a nucleus, such as a proton or alpha particle, which produces secondary ionization.

Leukemia Cluster

An apparent but unexpected or extraordinary group of leukemia cases within some number or group of persons.

Privacy Act

The Privacy Act of 1974 is a part of Public Law 93-579. This was an Act to amend Title 5, U.S. Code, by adding Section 552a, which was to safeguard individual privacy from the misuse of federal agency records, to provide that individuals be granted access to records concerning them which are maintained by federal agencies, to establish a Privacy Protection Study Commission, and for other reasons.

rad

An acronym for "radiation absorbed dose," a unit of absorbed dose of ionizing radiation. A dose of one rad means the absorption of 100 ergs of energy from ionizing radiation per gram of absorbing material (e.g., body tissue).

An acronym for "roentgen equivalent man or mammal." A rad of radiation absorbed dose in tissue multiplied by the quality factor (QF) of a particular radiation equals the rem dose. Current QF values are one for x, gamma, and beta radiations; 10 for neutrons; and 20 for alpha particles.

A special unit of exposure to ionizing radiation. It is defined precisely as that quantity of gamma (or x) rays that, when completely stopped in air, will produce positive and negative ions with a total charge of 2.58×10^{-4} coulombs in one kilogram of dry air under standard conditions.

Shallow-dose
Equivalent (H_s)

The equivalent dose deriving from external radiation at a depth of 0.007 cm in tissue.

Thermoluminescent
Dosimeter (TLD)

An instrument used to detect and measure accumulated radiation exposure. Thermoluminescence refers to the release of the accumulated energy in the form of light upon heating of the absorbing medium.

Track Etch
Dosimeter

An instrument used to detect and measure exposure to radiation from a neutron source. As neutrons strike the polyethylene sheets covering a dosimetry-grade polymer, Columbia Resin-39 (CR-39), proton recoils produce etching into tracks on the CR-39. The tracks are counted, and a dose is calculated.

VELA UNIFORM

A DoD program designed to improve the capability to detect, identify, and locate underground nuclear explosions.

x rays

Electromagnetic radiations produced by electron reactions, as opposed to emissions of gamma photons (rays) given off by nuclei. Otherwise, high energy x rays are identical with gamma photons of the same energy.
